

The Queensland Journal of Military History, published annually by the Queensland Military Historical Society, encourages articles dealing with the following broad themes and topics. These should not, however, be considered as exhaustive. All submissions will be assessed at the discretion of the Editor and the Society's Research Sub-Committee (if required).

Queensland Journal of Military History

Volume 2, 2023

CONTENTS

1. Queensland's military history from 1824 to the present

- (i) The British Army presence to 1869;
- (ii) Queensland volunteer and militia force, 1860-1901;
- (iii) Queensland's role in Commonwealth forces in war and peace; and
- (iv) Memoirs and life-writing by current and former services personnel with a connection to Queensland.

2. The QMHS museum, library and archives collections

- (i) Identification, assessment and interpretation of items in the QMHS collection.

3. Military sites and places in Queensland

- (i) Establishment and maintenance of Queensland's defence infrastructure;
- (ii) Sites and features associated with key military establishments; and
- (iii) Documentation of civilian sites associated with military activities and events.

4. Commemorative events and anniversaries

- (i) Acknowledgment of events of international, national and state significance.

While the journal is oriented towards evidence-based historical research, undertaken to high standards of analytical rigour, written expression, and clarity, articles should be written with general rather than specialist readers in mind.

Our refereeing policy requires peer-reviewed reports on all manuscripts. The Editor is responsible for the acceptance of articles but should supply legitimate reasons for acceptance or rejection.

The opinions expressed in articles published and the accuracy of any statements contained in the same are solely the responsibility of the individual authors, who retain copyright to their original work when published in the journal. The Editor disclaims responsibility for statements, either of fact or opinion, made by the contributors. The Editor retains the right to condense articles and reviews, to make minor grammatical amendments and determine titles in consultation with authors.

Recommended word length is 5-6,000 words, not including references (endnotes), with a proposed title and author details on the front page. Final acceptance of articles for publication is conditional upon full compliance with the QJMH house style (see www.qmhs.com.au).

An Imperial Presence: Queensland's Scarlet Legacy	JEFF HOPKINS-WEISE AND ROD PRATT	5
"To Rid of Their Regiment": Soldiers as Convicts at Moreton Bay Penal Settlement, 1826- 1830	JENNIFER HARRISON	26
Harry 'Breaker' Morant Memorabilia? The J.F. Thomas Collection	IAN SKENNERTON	48
Charters Towers in the Great War, 1914-1918	DOUGLAS POTTER	59
"Under Active Service Conditions": Queensland School Cadet Camps in the Second World War	LIAM BARNSDALE	73

Contributors

Liam Barnsdale is a PhD candidate at the University of Queensland and a tutor in the UQ History program. His recently-submitted thesis, “Boys into Soldiers?: The Politics and Practicalities of Secondary School Cadet Training in Australia and New Zealand, 1939-1945” examines the diverse views on cadet training across socio-economic, racial, religious, and regional divides between and within the two countries during WWII. liamz13lb@gmail.com.

Jennifer Harrison is an Honorary Research Associate at the University of Queensland. With broad historical interests, in recent times she has concentrated on Moreton Bay’s early days and people, Queensland immigration patterns especially reflecting the Irish contribution, and Anglican diocesan history. Her most recent book is Fettered Frontier: Founding the Moreton Bay Settlement 1822-1826 (Brisbane: Boolarong, 2023). jennifer.harrison@uq.edu.au

Jeff Hopkins-Weise is the author of Blood Brothers: The Anzac Genesis (Penguin Books, 2009 and other editions) which details Australian involvement in New Zealand’s Māori Wars. He is currently a senior heritage advisor and historian with Navin Officer Heritage Consultants, Kingston ACT. jhopkins-weise@bigpond.com.

Douglas Potter is a teacher by profession, and graduated from the University of Queensland in 2020 with an Honours degree in History. His thesis (from which this article is drawn) examined the social experiences of several Queensland towns during World War I. dpotter@uq.net.au

The late Rod Pratt was a specialist in the history of the British military in early Queensland, and a Visiting Fellow at the Harry Gentle Resource Centre at Griffith University in Brisbane. Rod sadly passed away on 22 June 2022.

Ian Skennerton is an authority on military arms and accoutrement, and the author of numerous books, studies, and reports. idskennerton@hotmail.com

Published by the Queensland Military Historical Society
PO Box 243, Wynnum Q4178
Fort Lytton, 160 South Street, Lytton Q4178

Editor: Geoff Ginn, QMHS Research sub-committee

Incorporated Association (IA) Number 18 628
ABN 35 839 287 417
Email: queenslandmilitary@gmail.com

Printed and bound by Poll Printing
45 Peel Street, South Brisbane Q4101

ISSN 2653-6544 (Online)
ISSN 2653-6536 (Print)

The contents of this publication © 2023 in the names of the authors; all rights reserved. The views expressed in articles published in this journal belong to the identified authors, and do not reflect the views of the Queensland Military Historical Society.

Cover: Sgt. Mackay and 15th Battalion Knitting Club members, Charters Towers, 1917 (State Library of Queensland).